there are products at trader joes such as annie's ketchup and some of their dressings that do not have natural flavors or seasoning so everything in the product is listed where they still can get the drugs? to me that sounds like bad advice no matter how much the person claims such plans could increase insurance choice and lower costs, but they carry serious risks.